

CUSTOMER-DRIVEN MARKETING STRATEGY
CREATING VALUE FOR TARGET CUSTOMERS

Chapter 6

REST STOP: PREVIEWING THE CONCEPTS

Define the major steps in designing a customer-driven marketing strategy: market segmentation, targeting, differentiation, and positioning

List and discuss the major bases for segmenting consumer and business markets

Explain how companies identify attractive market segments and choose a market-targeting strategy

Discuss how companies differentiate and position their products for maximum competitive advantage

FIRST STOP: DUNKIN' DONUTS: TARGETING THE AVERAGE JOE

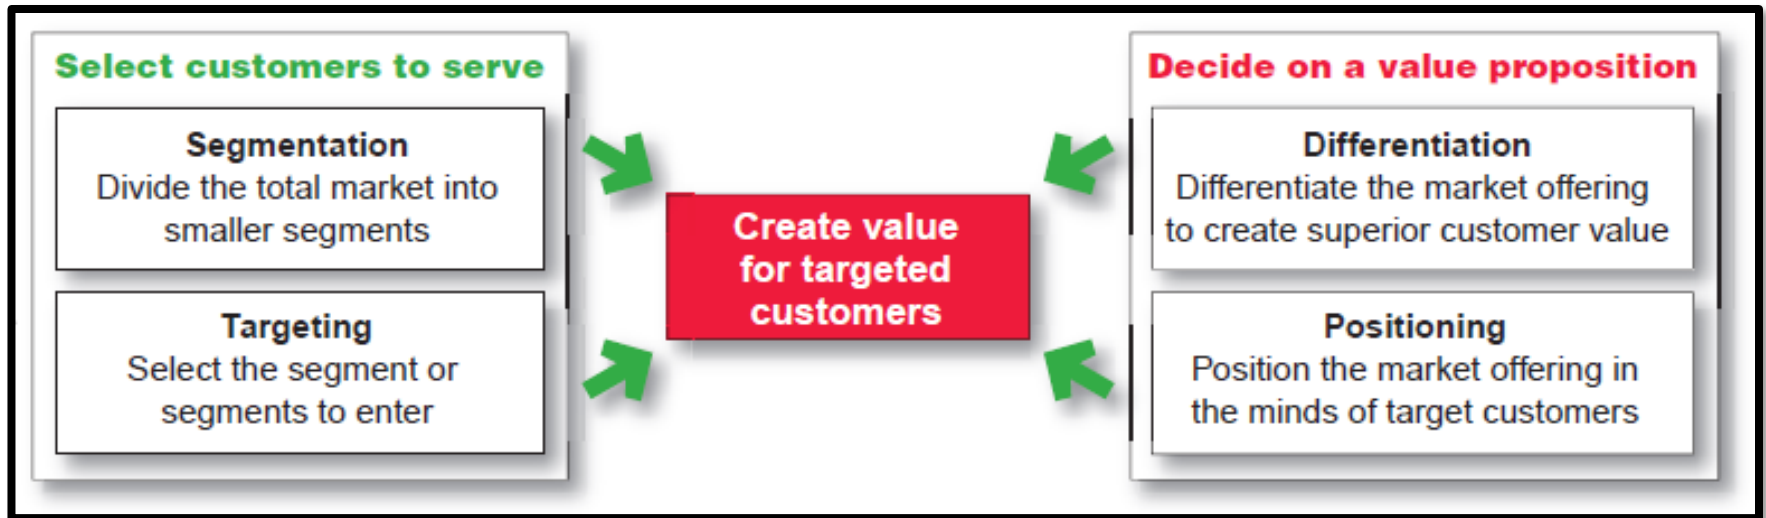

Dunkin' Donuts positions itself as serving simple fare at a reasonable price

This positioning resonated strongly with customers during the recession

Refreshes its menu keeping in mind the preferences of the customers it attracts

Ranks number one in the coffee category in a leading customer loyalty survey

Market segmentation

Dividing a market into smaller segments of buyers with distinct needs, characteristics, or behaviors that might require separate marketing strategies or mixes

Market targeting

The process of evaluating each market segment's attractiveness and selecting one or more segments to enter

Differentiation

Differentiating the market offering to create superior customer value

Positioning

Arranging for a market offering to occupy a clear, distinctive, and desirable place relative to competing products in the minds of target consumers

SEGMENTING CONSUMER MARKETS

Geographic
segmentation

Demographic
segmentation

Psychographic
segmentation

Behavioral
segmentation

GEOGRAPHIC SEGMENTATION

Dividing a market into different geographical units, such as nations, regions, counties, or cities

Companies are localizing their products, advertising, promotion, and sales efforts to fit the needs of individual regions, cities or even neighbourhoods

DEMOGRAPHIC SEGMENTATION

Dividing the market into segments based on variables such as age, life-cycle stage, gender, income, occupation, education, religion, ethnicity, and generation

Age and life-cycle
segmentation

Gender
segmentation

Income
segmentation

AGE AND LIFE-CYCLE SEGMENTATION

Dividing a market into different age and life-cycle groups

Marketers must guard against using stereotypes

Disney Cruise Lines targets primarily families with children—most of its destinations and shipboard activities are designed with parents and their children in mind

GENDER SEGMENTATION

Dividing a market into different segments based on gender

Has long been used in clothing, cosmetics, toiletries and magazines

Harley-Davidson has traditionally targeted men between 35 and 55 years old, but women are now among its fastest-growing customer segments. Female buyers account for 12 percent of new Harley-Davidson purchases

INCOME SEGMENTATION

Dividing a market into different income segments

Has long been used in automobiles, clothing, cosmetics, financial services and travel

Some marketers target high-income segments

Retailers who target low- and middle-income groups are thriving

PSYCHOGRAPHIC SEGMENTATION

Dividing a market into different segments based on social class, lifestyle, or personality characteristics

The products people buy reflect their lifestyles

BEHAVIORAL SEGMENTATION

Dividing a market into segments based on consumer knowledge, attitudes, uses, or responses to a product

OCCASION SEGMENTATION

Dividing the market into segments according to occasions when buyers get the idea to buy, actually make their purchase, or use the purchased item

M&M's Brand Chocolate Candies runs special ads and packaging for holidays and events such as Easter

BENEFIT SEGMENTATION AND USER STATUS

Benefit segmentation: Dividing the market according to the different benefits that consumers seek from the product

User status – Segments include nonusers, ex-users, potential users, first-time users, and regular users

Usage Rate - Markets can also be segmented into light, medium, and heavy product users

LOYALTY STATUS

Buyers can be divided into groups according to their degree of loyalty

None, medium, strong, absolute

“Mac Fanatics”—fanatically loyal Apple users are at the forefront of Apple’s empire

USING MULTIPLE SEGMENTATION BASES

Using multiple segmentation bases to identify smaller, better-defined target groups

The Nielsen PRIZM system

- Based on demographic factors
- Classifies U.S. households into 66 demographically and behaviorally distinct segments

#18
Kids & Car-to-Safe
Parents, suburban, married couples with children—don't the adults in Kids & Car-to-Safe. We include children of large families to security built suburbanites. With a high rate of Hispanic and Asian Americans, this segment is a refuge for college education, white-collar professions, with administrative jobs and open-minded class interests. Their needs of education, affluence and children translate into large budgets for child centered products and services.

#21
Gray Power
The steady rise of older, healthier Americans over the past decade has produced one segment by product, middle-class, more working suburbanites who are aging in place—other than moving to retirement communities. Gray Power reflects this trend, a segment of older, mobile singles and couples who are in good health.

SEGMENTING BUSINESS MARKETS

Consumer and business markets use many of the same variables for segmentation

Business marketers can also use:

- Operating characteristics
- Purchasing approaches
- Situational factors
- Personal characteristics

SEGMENTING INTERNATIONAL MARKETS

Geographic location: grouping countries by regions, assumes that nations close to one another will have common traits and behaviors

Economic factors

- Income levels or overall level of economic development

Political and legal factors

- Type of government, receptivity to foreign firms, monetary regulations, and bureaucracy

Cultural factors

- Languages, religions, values, customs

Assumes that segments should consist of clusters of countries

INTERMARKET SEGMENTATION

Forming segments of consumers who have similar needs and buying behavior even though they are located in different countries

Coca-Cola targets the world's teens no matter where they live, with campaigns such as Coca-Cola Music, which ran in more than 100 markets worldwide

REQUIREMENTS FOR EFFECTIVE SEGMENTATION

To be useful, market segments must be:

- Measurable
- Accessible
- Substantial
- Differentiable
- Actionable

In evaluating different market segments, a firm must look at:

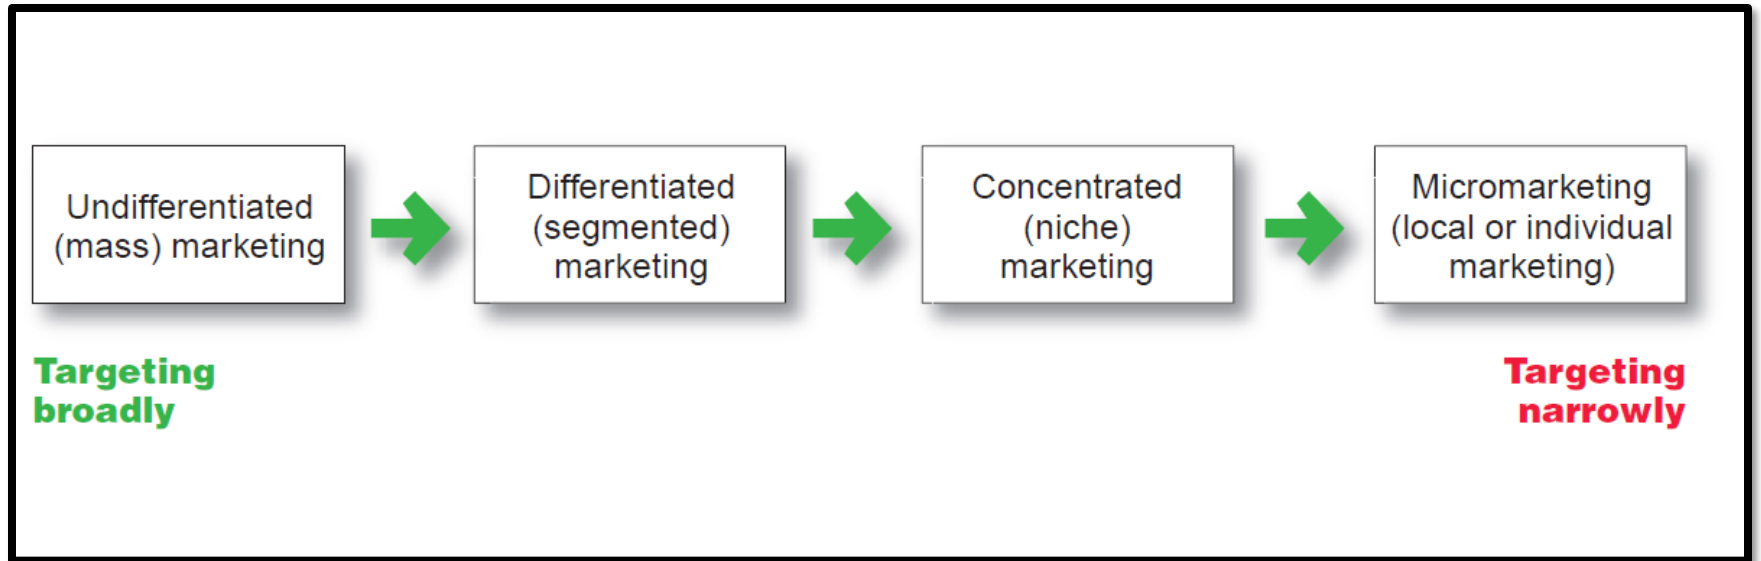

- Segment size and growth
- Segment structural attractiveness
- Company objectives and resources

Target market

- A set of buyers sharing common needs or characteristics that the company decides to serve

UNDIFFERENTIATED MARKETING

A firm decides to ignore market segment differences and go after the whole market with one offer

Focuses on what is common in the needs of consumers

Designs a product and a marketing program that will appeal to the largest number of buyers

DIFFERENTIATED MARKETING

A firm decides to target several market segments and designs separate offers for each

By offering product and marketing variations to segments, Co.s hope for higher sales and a stronger position within each segment

Hallmark's three ethnic lines—Mahogany, Sinceramente Hallmark, and Tree of Life—target African-American, Hispanic, and Jewish consumers, respectively

Increases the cost of doing business

Marketers must weigh increased sales against increased costs

CONCENTRATED MARKETING

A firm goes after a large share of one or a few smaller segments or niches

Can fine-tune its products, prices, and programs to the needs of carefully defined segments

Thanks to the reach and power of the Web, online nicher Etsy—sometimes referred to as eBay’s funky little sister—is thriving

The firm achieves a stronger market position due to:

Greater knowledge of customer needs

Special reputation it acquires

It can market more effectively

It can market more efficiently

Niches are smaller than segments and attract one or few competitors

Can be very profitable but involves higher than normal risks

Co.s that rely on one or few smaller segments for all of their business will suffer greatly if the segment turns sour

Or if a larger competitor may decide to enter same segment with greater resources

MICROMARKETING

Tailoring products and marketing programs to the needs and wants of specific individuals and local customer groups

Local marketing

Individual
marketing

LOCAL MARKETING

Tailoring brands and promotions to the needs and wants of local customer groups—cities, neighbourhoods, and even specific stores

The North Face uses “geo-fencing” to send localized text messages to consumers who get near one of its stores

LOCAL MARKETING DRAWBACKS

Drives up production and marketing costs by reducing economies of scale

Creates logistics problems

Overall image might be diluted if the product and message vary too much in different localities.

LOCAL MARKETING BENEFITS

Local marketing allows a firm to market effectively in the face of pronounced regional and local differences in demographics and lifestyles

Meets the needs of retailers by providing them with finely tuned product assortments for their neighborhoods

INDIVIDUAL MARKETING

Tailoring products and marketing programs to the needs and preferences of individual customers also labeled customized marketing and one-to one marketing

Companies such as CaféPress are hyper-personalizing everything from artwork, earphones, and sneakers to yoga mats, water bottles, and food

New technologies are permitting marketers to return to customized marketing

Mass customization: the process through which firms interact one-one with masses of customers to design products and services tailor-made to individual needs.

One-to-one marketing has made relationships with customers more important than ever

Self marketing: Increasingly, individual customers are taking more responsibility for shaping both the products they buy and the buying experience whereby the marketer has less influence on the buying decision.

CHOOSING A TARGETING STRATEGY

Factors to consider:

- Company resources
- Market variability
- Product's life-cycle stage
- Product variability
- Competitors' marketing strategies

SOCIALLY RESPONSIBLE TARGET MARKETING

Marketing generates concern when targeting:

- Vulnerable, minority or disadvantaged populations
- Children and teens

Controversy arises when an attempt is made to profit at the expense of these segments

DIFFERENTIATION AND POSITIONING

The company must decide on a value proposition:

- How it will create differentiated value for targeted segments
- What positions it wants to occupy in those segments

Product position - The way a product is defined by consumers on important attributes

A product's position-the place the product occupies in consumers' minds relative to competing products

A product's position-It is the complex set of perceptions, impressions and feelings that consumers have for the product relative to competing products

Consumers position products with or without the help of marketers

POSITIONING MAPS

Show consumers perceptions about a co.'s brands vs. competing products on important buying dimensions

CHOOSING A DIFFERENTIATION AND POSITIONING STRATEGY

Identifying a set of differentiating competitive advantages on which to build a position

Choosing the right competitive advantages

Selecting an overall positioning strategy

Competitive advantage

- An advantage over competitors gained by offering greater customer value, either by having lower prices or providing more benefits that justify higher prices

IDENTIFYING POSSIBLE VALUE DIFFERENCES AND COMPETITIVE ADVANTAGES

A firm can create differentiation on:

- Product
- Services
- Channels
- People
- Image

Seventh Generation, a maker of household cleaning supplies, differentiates itself not by how its products perform but by the fact that its products are greener

Choose whether to promote a single benefit or multiple benefits

Promote differences that are:

Important

Distinctive

Superior

Communicable

Pre-emptive

Affordable

Profitable

CHOOSING THE RIGHT COMPETITIVE ADVANTAGES

Purex Complete 3-in-1 is positioned on multiple benefits

Value proposition

- The full positioning of a brand—the full mix of benefits on which it is positioned

		Price
		More	The same	Less
Benefits	More	More for more	More for the same	More for less
	The same			The same for less
	Less			Less for much less

WINNING VALUE PROPOSITIONS

More for more

Provide the most upscale product and charge a higher price to cover the higher costs

More for the same

Attack a competitor's positioning by introducing a brand offering comparable quality at a lower price

The same for less

Offer similar products at much reduced prices
Developing imitative but lower-priced brands

Less for much less

Meet consumers' lower performance or quality requirements at a much lower price

More for less

Offer the best products at the lowest prices

DEVELOPING A POSITIONING STATEMENT

A statement that summarizes company or brand positioning using this form: To (target segment and need) our (brand) is (concept) that (point of difference)

To busy, mobile professionals who need to always be in the loop, Blackberry is a wireless connectivity solution that gives you an easier, more reliable way to stay connected to data, people and resources while on the go.

COMMUNICATING AND DELIVERING THE CHOSEN POSITION

All the company's marketing mix efforts must support the chosen positioning strategy

If the co. decides to build a position on better quality and service, it must first deliver that position

Through concrete action not talk, a co. can build a consistent believable more-for-more position
